Civic Universities and Inclusive Local Economic Recovery

Wednesday 30 September

10:00 – 11:30

Hosted by City-REDI, University of Birmingham, the webinar will focus on how universities can play a strong role in local economic recovery

The aim is to share experience between members of the network and enable participants to question national policy influencers and those in working university - regional partnerships.

The webinar will include:

- The national context – the role of universities in connecting economic growth and social inclusion
- Regional partnership examples – Universities working with local stakeholders. What works well and what needs to work?
- The way ahead for maximising / optimising civic university contributions

Confirmed Guest speakers include Lord David Willetts, Lord Robert Kerslake and Sarah Davidson (Carnegie UK Trust) who will discuss the National context, followed by regional partnership examples with key speakers from The West Midlands, The North East and The Glasgow City region.
